

Make a bequest

Give a precious gift to our feminist movement

The Working Women's Centre helps vulnerable women every day. We're a not-for-profit organisation, a charity, and a service that helps women by providing free legal advice. Our Centre has worked for over 40 years to make workplaces fairer for women.

You can help women of all ages to lead systemic change for a better world. Our work is only made possible through the support of grants and donations. Bequests to the Working Women's Centre SA help us to operate and continue our important work sustainably & avoid a funding crisis.

A bequest is a legal gift of personal property, such as money or personal items of value, that are given by will after a person has passed away.*

How would you like to be remembered? Making a bequest allows you to make a tangible positive change & creates a legacy that ensures your values of fighting for a better future for vulnerable women carry's on.

You can help us to continue our work towards a future where women are free of gender-based violence, inequality and discrimination.

Making a bequest is a powerful way to express your feminist values in your Will, and passes on your vision for a better world to others.
